

Ask the recruiters:

How can I progress my career from a corporate role to a role in the fund space?

“It can be confusing to know where to start when you are aiming to make a career move from a corporate business and into the fund space.”

Our advice to you will differ depending on where you are in your current career and where you visualise you would like to be. It's important to explore options and go to lots of interviews; don't get too hung up on the job specifications that are put in front of you.

Lots of different funds use different language when they're recruiting for new roles.”
